taining $13,816 by Fraud.

Three warrants charging grand larceny, embezzlement and felonious fraud were issued yesterday against Rudolph Krauss, a real estate agent, who, until a short time ego, had an office in Room No. 201 Lincoln Trust building. Mrs. Helen Hartman of No. 2017 Dekalb street swore to the warrants. It is alleged that Krauss defrauded Mr. end Mrs. George Boehm, the aged father and mother of Mrs. Hartman, of a total of $13,818.

"Two years ago we belonged to a building and loan association with Mr. Krauss," said Mrs. Hartmann, "and when it went under Mr. Krauss explained to my father and mother that he would help them to get their money back with interest. On March 29, 1890, they let him have $1,690 for investment purposes. At a subsequent day they let him have $1,000 as their agent. Finally, on March 28, they turned over to him every cent they had. $2,218, to be invested in land in Wayne and Butler counties. Mr. Krauss said it was very valuable property, and that $1,790 had been spent on improvement. We have recently found that the property was not worth $500."

Krauss closed up his office and left the town about two months ago. It is supposed that he is in Comstock, III.

Bowman's. Again the household was awakened, but the negro made good his exgape.

John Bergen, living at No. 127 St. Clair avenue, was awakened about 3:20 o'clock by a noise. The burgiar had accidentally slammed a sereen door, and the noise caused Mr. Bergen to awaken. Mr. Bergen grabbed a heavy cuspidor and hurled it at the fellow. The cuspidor went through the screen door, but it had the desired effect of frightening the burgiar away.

Frank McCamble of No. 810 North First street discovered a burgiar in the act of breaking into his house. He threw chairs down a staircase and the noise frightened the intruders away.

At the home of Mrs. M. W. Watson, on North Sixth street, a negro burgiar entered the bedroom of Mrs. Watson. She was awakened, and taking a revolver from beneath her pillow, she empties it at him. He escaped, and, it is thought, was not injured. The last place entered was the home of Emerick Walker, No. 826 North First street. A negro broke the lock on the front door and was ransacking the house when Mrs. Walker was awakened. She first took a good look at the fellow and then gave the alarm. The burgiar fied. Two hours later a negro who said his name was William Ivory was arrested and yesterday morning was identified by Mrs. Walker as the man who entered her house. He is charged with attempted burgiary.

Yesterday morning Edward McHale, living at No. 820 North First street, discovered that his kitchen had been entered by thieves, but nothing of value was taken.

Miss Reardon lived with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Heinz, at No. 2130 Adams street. Her purents reside in Glendale, Hamilton County, O., and her body will be shipped there for burial. She had been employed in the bag factory for six years. After the poker episode Mrs. French left her Hege lord and refused to be reconciled to him. She told her friends that she and her husband had frequently quarreled, and her petition to the court sets forth the same state of affairs in detail and with the customary formality of such documents.

Before they journeyed to Bolleville French and Miss Chitty worked side by side in an East St. Louis insurance office. She has now returned to her old position.

It is not known whether French will contest the plea for divorce or let the case go by default.
